CANADA'S FAMOUS WHEATS

Canada's famous varieties of wheats may be attributed mainly to the plant-breeding program of the Dominion Experimental Farms, Marquis, as yet the principal wheat evolved by the Farms is still entitled to be regarded as the king of Canadian wheats in spite of the fact that other varieties have threatened to dethrone it. Reward, Garnet, Bobs, and Huron, the last named being valued chiefly in Eastern Canada, are other outstanding varieties of Canadian wheat. Like Marquis, Reward and Garnet were originated at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa. Reward, a cross between Marquis and Preluda has attained fame chiefly on account of its earliness and remarkable ability to produce at least reasonably good quality in areas where high quality is not expected. Garnet, a cross between Preston and Riga, ripens usually a little ahead of Reward and in many places yields considerably more. Bobs, developed by Dr. Seeger Wheeler, of Rochester, Saskatchewan, is another early ripening wheat, and Huron, one of the first cross-bred varieties introduced by the Experimental Farms, is still one of the leading wheats in Eastern Ontario and Quebec. Manitou, a durum wheat, and Ceres, a bread wheat, recently introduced from the United States, hold places of distinction in Southern Man-

PRE-COOLING DRESSED POULTRY

The object of pre-cooling dressed poultry before packing is to remove the animal heat from the fowl as quickly as possible. The loss in weight during pre-cooling is usually about one quarter per cent of the original weight of the birds. Thus, as Dr. W. H. Cook of the National Research Council of Canada points out, one ton of poultry will give off about five pounds of moisture, or enough to saturate 17,000 cubic feet of air at 32 degrees Fahrenheit. Poultry should be pre-cooled at from 30 to 32 degrees Fahrenheit, this being the lowest temperature that can be employed without freezing. It is particularly important to avoid freezing, even at the surface if the product is to be held in a chilled condition. In a room 30 degrees Fahrenheit poultry can be cooled from a temperature between 80 to 100 degrees Fahrenheit to within 2 degrees of the room temperature (30 degrees) in 10 or 11 hours, and to the room temperature in from 20 to 24 hours. Ideally, poultry should be packed at the temperature at which it was pre-cooled, but for the comfort of the graders and packers it is customary to work at a somewhat higher temperature.

Bobs and Saskatchewan. Among autumn-sown wheats produced in Ontario Dawson's Golden Chaff is regarded as the standard of perfection for the production of pastry and cake flour, while in Southern Alberta, where Fall wheat is grown to a limited extent,

OCEAN FISH

Glaciers, passing over the midwest of North America, especially in the land of the Great Lakes, washed the iodine out of the soil there and carried it away to the ocean. Fish and vegetation in the Great Lakes region, lack the iodine content which is needed to keep the thyroid gland from developing goitre, in many persons.

Those living in these regions need to eat ocean fish, which are rich in iodine, and to use iodized salt. Oysters, salmon, cod, haddock, halibut, flounder, pollock and hake are some varieties. These fish are rapidly and skillfully cleaned at the docks as they are brought in fresh from the sea. They are then wrapped in sanitary parchment, packed in ice, shipped to your retailer and may be had fresh and sound by the housewife in any part of the country.

There is no excuse now for any woman letting herself fall a victim of goitre because she has suffered from the lack of iodine so plentiful in ocean fish.

Jas. Guss arrived here on Friday and is visiting with friends.

Ernest Gange returned from Quebec, Saturday, March 16th where he had spent the winter months.

Miss Mitchel who has been engaged in assisting Mr. H. Creighton in holding Evangelistic Services, left on Friday for Naco.

Mrs. W. E. Bennett of Cereal visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bennett over the week end.

Eric White who spent the winter months with relatives at Sarnia, Ontario, returned home Saturday.

A number of young people from here attended the card party and dance at Youngstown Friday evening.

Mr. A. V. Youell and Mr. Tilley, of Cereal, motored to Calgary on Saturday and returned Sunday.

N. F. Marcy was a Hanna visitor Monday attending the Social Credit Study Group.

Mrs. Loader left Saturday night for Hanna where she will receive medical treatment.

The members of Crocus Lodge A. N. & A. M. entertained at their Annual Social Evening on Wednesday March 13th. The evening was spent playing bridge. The honours going to Mrs. Chapman and Mr. C. W. Agar, while the minor prizes were taken by Mrs. Waterhouse and M. L. Chapman.

Edmonton Notes

EDMONTON, Alta.—The week just passed has witnessed important matters taking place in the Alberta legislature, important resolutions being discussed and the new budget being presented.

The last named measure being the one that awakens most interest in the minds of the citizens, it is fitting to consider it first and to the greatest extent.

It will be welcome news that no new taxation is to add to the already overburdened taxpayers of Alberta, excepting an increase of one per cent a gallon on gasoline, which has been forecast for some weeks. The outstanding feature in the government's fiscal measure, and the one which is awakening a lot of interest in and out of the province is the proposals of the provincial treasurer for reducing the debt burden of the province by a new refunding scheme, which appears practical and sufficiently simple to be workable.

It is a plan for refunding $131,000,000 of debt, by which the government hopes to save $2,000,000 annually. An estimate deficit of $699,470 is being budgeted for the fiscal year ending March 1936.

The new refunding plan suggested by Hon. J. R. Love, provides that $60,000,000 of the provincial debt would be converted into consolidated perpetual stock bearing interest at three per cent; the interest only being guaranteed by the dominion government. The remaining $71,000,000 of debt would be converted into 30-year serial debentures of equal annual instalments of principal and interest, bearing interest at three and one-half per cent. The sinking fund provision would be eliminated under this plan, which is entirely new in Canadian government financing. The details of the plan are, sure to be given careful study by the legislature during the next few days.

Another important matter that came before the house was a resolution, unanimously adopted by the house, urging on the federal government that the ban be placed against all undesirable immigration into the country. The resolution was moved by Dr. W. A. Aikinson, Conservative, of Edmonton, who pointed out that while the immigration policy of the dominion was that of the federal government, the province had suffered by the admission of mentally affected and normally unsuited immigrants. The resolution, subscribed to all parties, asked that the most careful selection of immigrants at the place of their origin be practiced in future.

At the suggestion of a resolution adopted by the house an invitation has been sent to William Abernethy, of Calgary, widely known advocate of social credit, to come to the committee of the house and expound any plan for social credit he has. Every assistance will be given Mr. Abernethy, if he comes but there are rumors that he may not.

Significant Trends

Whether they believe in them or not, and irrespective of the fact whether they are ardent supporters or skeptical critics, people are deeply interested in the outcome of the various experiments now being tried throughout the world in matters of government, economics and finance. Quite apart from the fact whether or not they are convinced that the old order has, as some contend, broken down beyond all hope of repair and is now definitely and forever passing away, or, on the contrary, still adhere to the view that while changes are taking place, mistakes corrected, abuses eliminated, and improvements made, the old order is essentially sound and will prevail and achieve greater triumphs than ever before, people cannot be indifferent to present day events and the influence which such events are bound to have upon their lives and the times in which they live.

But, as has been noted and commented on many times, we are a credulous people. Of the American people it was said that they thought prohibition, termed a noble experiment, would end liquor and the saloon, and later that they thought the repeal of prohibition would end the bootlegger. Now, under the N.R.A., the United States has embarked upon another experiment, —the business of making rules for business. Rules have been laid down in nearly 500 codes governing 500 industries; and the problem now is how these rules are to be forced. For it has to be recognized that there are many men in every trade who can be counted on to invent devices, as the bootlegger did, for chronic evasion.

As a matter of fact, a small army is now employed across the line in the task of ferreting out evasions and seeking to convict violators of the various N.R.A. codes and thus protect those who are honestly endeavoring to carry out the obligations imposed upon them and their businesses under the New Deal. But notwithstanding all these efforts, a well known authority makes the statement that it is quite safe to say that in the great majority of cases there is no enforcement because any attempt to enforce the rules would lead to abandonment of the code. For this reason there is a strong group in Washington which demands that an immense section of the rules be abandoned. In fact, the proposal is now seriously advanced that codes be applied only to those businesses which do an inter-State business and that they no longer be applied to the smaller concerns whose operations are more local and restricted to the State within which the business is located. This is a most significant development. It indicates that practical regimentation of business has its limitations.

Turning to the Canadian picture, it would appear that much the same thought is entertained by people on this side of the line. The recent voting throughout the three prairie provinces on the proposal to establish a compulsory egg and poultry pool is one indication. The scheme was defeated in Manitoba by a three to one vote and in neither Saskatchewan nor Alberta was the required two-thirds majority obtained, and in Saskatchewan less than one-half of those entitled to vote even took the trouble to return their ballots, thus indicating either opposition or indifference which amounted to opposition in view of the two-thirds vote requirement to carry.

As a result of this voting, it is announced from Ottawa that the compulsory feature will be dropped from all other proposals for the inauguration of schemes under the National Products Marketing Act, and that while efforts will be continued to further develop the idea of co-operation in support of prices and marketing methods, the plan of making any of these schemes compulsory upon an opposing minority has been definitely abandoned. This, too, is significant as indicating that the Canadian people are not ready to accept either the theories or plans of Communism or the one hand or Fascism on the other hand but that they are still firm believers in the ideals and methods of a free democracy.

But, while thus revealing a degree of confidence in the existing order, and a belief that necessary reforms can be brought about to correct the evils and remove the abuses which have developed like barnacles upon it, there can be little doubt but that the minds of the Canadian people are firmly fixed upon achieving those very necessary reforms and to do so without loss of time. That is to say, the violation of proper, honest business ethics and methods will be brought to book, made to observe and live up to honest and fair-dealing methods, or forced out of business altogether. There is going to be a New Deal, but it will be invoked and enforced by a free democracy.

Preparing To Visit London

Advance Bookings Of Cunard White Star Line Indicate Many Will Attend Silver Jubilee

Large numbers of Canadians are preparing to visit London for the King's Silver Jubilee celebrations, commemorating the reign which began on May 6, 1910, and reaches its 25th anniversary on May 6 of this year, the date to be known as Silver Jubilee Day, according to advance bookings for the first Cunard White Star sailings from Montreal. These are on April 26 when the Alumina, to Plymouth, Havre and London, and the Andania to Glasgow, Belfast and Liverpool, will open the St. Lawrence season for this line.

These two sailings are sure to be popular because of the fact that tourist and third class passengers using these two sailings will still be able to take advantage of the special round-trip excursion rates of single fare and one-third which allow 15 days' stay in Europe. This rate is only good until April 30.

World's Fastest Camera

Photographs Flame Travelling At 24,000 Miles An Hour

One of the latest wonders of scientific research is a camera capable of photographing flame travelling at 24,000 miles an hour.

The fastest camera in the world, it has just been perfected in London at the Department of Chemical Technology at the Imperial College of Science by R. P. Fraser, an inventor, and his assistant, Dr. W. H. Wheeler. It is called the Fraser High Speed Camera No. 5. It costs about $1,000 to build.

By the new knowledge it will give of the behavior of explosion flames the camera may be the means of saving hundreds of lives.

COULD NOT SEW A BUTTON ON

Her Hands Were Helpless with Rheumatism

At one time she thought she would lose the use of her right hand. But a blessing—in the form of Kruschen Salts—put her right again. "I was sure in a bad state," she writes. "In fact, I could not do my housework, I was so bad with rheumatism in my arms and hands. I could not sleep at nights, and I thought I would lose the use of my right hand. I could not hold anything, nor could I sew a button on my arm would go dead. I was advised to try Kruschen, and inside of three weeks I found such a change. I have kept on taking it, and now I sleep all night—thanks to Kruschen's Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals, which are responsible for rheumatic agony. Old ingredients of these salts assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channel."

Presentation To Scientist

Model Of Buffalo Is Gift Of Winnipeg To Prof. Huxley

A miniature bronze buffalo, modelled after the pair inside the parliament buildings in Winnipeg, was presented to Julian Huxley, distinguished British scientist, at Toronto, as a gift from the people of Winnipeg in appreciation of his lecture tour through the Canadian west.

The presentation was made at the conclusion of Professor Huxley's address. Dr. H. J. Cody, president of the University of Toronto, in a brief complimentary speech, recalled that in 1853, when a department of natural sciences was being formed at the Toronto University, an application for a professorship was received from Thomas Huxley, grandfather of the lecturer, and one of the greatest scientists of the 19th century. The application was not accepted. But the reason for the rejection was not clear.

All this misery was cured by taking Dr. Pierce's Female Purifier. All druggists. New size, tablets 50 cts, 100 cts. Write Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice."

"I suppose one dresses for dinner here?" the new guest asked the small town hotel keeper. "Well, suit yourself, sir. But I might add that we charge extra for meals served in bed."

China's Food Problems

Little Arable Land Not Now Being Cultivated

Although China's population has increased by 31 per cent. during the last 60 years, despite famines, floods and civil wars, the area of land actually being farmed neither increased nor decreased during those six decades, according to findings given out by the national agriculture research bureau at Nanking.

The official report declares "too optimistic" the belief China's food shortage and over-population problems can be even partially solved by reclaiming land now not used, or by directing settlement to the open spaces of the great northwest. The survey confirms there is little arable land in China not now being cultivated, and classes the waste places of the northwest as largely unfit for farming.

Wards Of The Government

Bill Introduced In Ontario Legislature For Protection Of Quintuplets

With the aim of making the Dionne quintuplets "special wards of His Majesty the King, as represented by the minister of public welfare of Ontario," Hon. David A. Craig, minister of welfare and municipal affairs, introduced a bill in the Ontario legislature regarding the famous babies of Callander, Ont.

By the bill, cabinet is empowered to appoint a board of guardians with authority over the finances, education and physical well-being of the children.

These "active guardians" will share authority with the father, Olivia Dionne, the "natural guardian," and Dr. Allan Roy Daffoe, whether or not the physician is appointed as a guardian, Mr. Craig said.

Moving Mountain Of Sand

Millions Of Tons Is Burying Forest In Australia

A moving mountain of sand at Curlew, Australia, has buried a small forest as it slowly advances. Trees 30 to 40 feet high have disappeared beneath the millions of tons of sand. Meanwhile, the sea is eating into land on the ocean side of the "mountain," and every time there is a heavy storm part of a 250-acre government recreation area slips into the Pacific.

Canadian Aviation

Importance Of Canada As Link In World Air Highways

The importance of Canada as a main link in future world air highways was stressed by Hon. Grote Stirling, minister of national defence, at Montreal, in addressing the annual banquet which closed the two-day convention of the Canadian Flying Clubs' Association.

With the future of Canadian aviation in mind, the government looked to the C.P.C.A. to take a leading part. The minister regretted his inability to promise the association further assistance at the present time due to the state of national finances.

He trusted the opportunity would soon be forthcoming when he could feel justified in putting forward proposals to the cabinet that would enable the government, if they accepted his advice, to provide the assistance the association hoped for. "A distinct relationship exists between the department of national defence and the Flying Clubs' Association," he said. The one-time expected clash of interests between the non-permanent flying forces and the flying clubs had never happened. It had been shown the clubs provided the very important task of training young men wishing to gain their commissions in the military aviation service.

Life Saving Medals

Officers Of Cunard White Star Line Receive Recognition

Herbert L. Satterlee, president of the Life Saving Benevolent Association of New York, pinned gold medals on Capt. J. G. P. Blisset, R.D., R.N.R., and Lieut. To the members of the boat crew which performed the rescue Mr. Satterlee presented $100 to each in cash in addition to a bronze medal. The presentation was made on the deck of the Ascania.

"We sure did. And on the way home, when Dustin tried to ride me down in the golpe de caballo, I upset him and I went through his pockets. I found in his pocketbook a note for eleven thousand borrowed on the Hour-glass that he got from Mr. Pegram. Pegram read the note to Dustin. That's how things stand."

"Uh-huh. And that means that if Dustin sues out the note, he'll have Joe's share of the Hour-glass. Joe can't meet that note right now, you know."

Again Stone nodded.

"And that means, of course," said Crewe moodily, "that Dustin can ruin Joe. Joe's past sixty right now. He only knows cattle. This is his last stake. You know Edith's right good. If she ever gets the idea into her red-head that, by marryin' Dustin, she can save her father, she's damned likely to do it. She'd even marry that dirty hound Dustin to save Joe."

"You forget one thing... two things. ... That are may be what I feel sure it is."

"I'll take a year to get even a hundred per cent. mine to workin', said Crewe. "There'll be a lawsuit first over it."

"We'll find that man Kane," said Stone confidently. "And, too, Gerald Keene'll be in to-morrow night. Something'll turn up."

"By Heavens, that's so. If this Gerald Keene is like his uncle, he'll never see old Joe shoved to the wall. I'm goin' in to Seco, to meet him to-morrow. I've got to go to the bank to try to raise money for our payroll. ... Nine hundred dollars. You better go with me."

"I'd like to see you stop me. I'm for the bunkhouse now," And Stone strode back toward the house.

Halfway to the bunkhouse he was stopped by Edith. For a moment she regarded him wordlessly. Her lips were unsmiling, but there was a light in her eyes that he had never seen but once.

"What has happened?" she asked breathlessly.

"Not much. I told Jameson of the Seco paper about the ore and he will have Buxton give an expert opinion on it. The most important thing is that he's tryin' to find Kane."

"That can't help much," she said. "My one hope is in Daddy's new partner, Mr. Keene. He may be able to help us if he will. Do you know what that beast Dustin said to Daddy? ...?" She told him pretty much what Crewe had already said.

"Of course he wants to marry you," he said curtly. "Who in his senses wouldn't? ... And at a sudden light in his eyes, she gave back a little and her laugh was a little strained. "The fool. ... The utter fool to think that he can buy a girl like you. ..."

"What do you mean by that? Buy me?"

"For one brief minute he could not decide whether to tell her of not. ... Then he told. Her eyes widened as she listened and when he stopped, she laid a hand gently on his arm.

"I'm glad you told me this," she said quickly. "I knew Daddy had borrowed some money but I did not know from whom he got it. ..."

"Your father doesn't yet know that Dustin holds the note," he said. "You'd better not tell him that yet. Wait till Keene gets here."

"I will be careful. I am glad to know the worst at least. ... I know at least where the thunder will come from."

"You will not even consider marrying that man Dustin, will you?"

"Would you drink poison if you were thirsty and if you knew it was poison?" she countered. "Good night." But her eyes told him untellable things.

Crewe drew him aside after dinner the next day.

"Darn it all," he said. "Old Joe insists on goin' in to Seco with me. I tried to head him off. If he goes to the bank to get the money for the payroll, he may find out about that note. It's sure to come up. If he finds that Pegram sold his note to Dustin, he'll likely go on the prod."

Even Edith could not keep her father at home. During that drive he was cranky and querulous, and Stone sensed flight.

"Go straight to the bank. ... Carr's usually pleasant voice was a snarl.

Stone headed the car for the bank and stopped under a tree and Carr, with Crewe at his heels, strode into the bank. Peters, seeing them enter, ducked into his cage, and old Pegram, his face flushed to a dusky tone, dived like a rabbit for his private office. The next moment Joe Carr burst into the room. A sudden babel of misgivings swung out of the empty bank.

"Good Lord," muttered Stone. "The fat's probably in the fire by now. I wonder if I had better have told him about that note of his that Dustin holds."

He was dimly aware that the centre of the trouble had drifted into Pegram's private office. One or two men in the street, hearing the voices raised in anger, stopped, grimed significantly and went on up the street. It was no new thing in Seco to have a sudden war start in Pegram's office. Suddenly old Joe Carr shot out of the place. His very beard was curling with wrath and his eyes were blazing. He stumbled into the car and Crewe pitched in beside him.

"Take it easy, Joe," he said in a low tone. "No need to let all Seco know your affairs. Take it easy, tell you. Did you get the cash for the payroll?"

"Oh, that! Yes. I got that on a thirty-day note for fifteen per cent. ... He laughed mirthlessly. "Do you know what that damned dog Pegram has done?" he said in a low, tense tone. "He held my note for eleven thousand secured by the half of the Hour-glass. Damned if he hasn't sold the note. ... To Dustin, of all men! That's why that damned cur had the nerve to come to me to tell me he wants to marry Edith."

His face suffused with blood and his breath drew hard.

"... I told Pegram I'd settle that note up on time."

"... So I will, just as soon as I can make arrangements with Gerald Keene, my partner. Damn it all! He'll buy the ranch from me if I say the word. How do I know? Hell, man! Isn't this Gerald Keene old Peter Vinton's kin? Wouldn't I have done the same for old Peter?"

And Frank Crewe, who knew that Joe was speaking the plain, unvarnished truth, said nothing. Carr snatched out his watch and glanced at it.

"We've got time to get a drink at the Silver Dollar before we meet the train," he snapped.

"We don't want anything to drink," expostulated Stone. "It's late now. The only reason you got into the bank was because it's open after hours."

Carr glared at him. For an employee to give him any back-talk was unheard of but ... He reflected that this man Stone was a close friend of this Gerald Keene, and this man Keene was an unknown quantity.

"You go to hell, son," he said with heavy emphasis. "You do as you're told. Drive to the Silver Dollar."

Stone glanced at Crewe and a quick nod reassured him. He stopped the car before the Silver Dollar and stayed in the car while Carr, and Carr behind him, entered the place. A moment later a hand was laid on his arm and Jameson stopped by him.

"I got some news for you, Stone," he said briefly. "I took that one to Buxton. He's come out crazy over it. He's says it's 'ham holed in champagne.' You know what an assayer means when he says that. He kept at me for an hour askin' where it comes from and if there is much of it. I stalled him off. By the way ..."

"How did that big sample get covered with blood?"

"Big sample? ... Stone stared at him. "Blood? ... What are you talking about, Jameson?"

"I'm talkin' about that biggest sample that you brought in. You had it in your coat pocket. Did you have a fight?"

"No. I don't understand. I seem to remember that I did notice a dark stain on it when I picked it up. ... By the way, I got that ore specimen from the place where the campfire was. That's probably where the blood came from. Have you succeeded in finding old man Kane yet?"

"No. No one has seen him for some time. They tell me he was being grub-staked by Dustin at the Broken Spur. That's what you said, too. I may have to see Dustin. It's barely possible that that old fool Peyott Gregg may be able to give me some information about Kane. I saw ..."

Little Helps For This Week

"Therefore my beloved brethren be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord. I. Corinthians 15:58.

Say not, 'twas all in vain, The anguish and the darkness and the strife; Love thrown upon the waters comes again In quenchless yearnings for a nobler life.

Did you ever hear of a man who had striven all his life faithfully and singly toward an object and in no measure obtained it? If a man constantly aspires, is he not elevated? Did ever a man try truth, heroism, sincerity of manhood, and find there was no advantage in them, or that it was a vain endeavor?

Do right, and God's recompense to you will be the power of doing more right. Give, and God's reward to you will be the spirit of giving more, a blessed spirit for it is the spirit of God himself, whose life is the blessedness of giving. Love, and God will repay you with the capacity of more love, for love is heaven, love is God within you.

Jubilee Services

Special Prayer Written For Occasion

By Archbishop of Canterbury

Church services throughout the British Empire will be marked by the singing of the national anthem during the celebration of the royal jubilee, it was announced in London. It was also announced a special prayer had been written for the occasion by the Archbishop of Canterbury and would be said in all English churches.

Text of prayer:

"It is very meet, right, and our bounden duty, that we should give thanks unto Thee, O Lord, holy Father, almighty, everlasting God, for that Thou wast pleased, as on this day, to set Thy servant, our sovereign lord, King George, upon the throne of this realm and hath profited him, in days of sickness and of health, throughout his reign of five and twenty years. For the example of unceasing service set by him and our gracious Queen Mary, for the loyalty borne to him by the great family of peoples and in all parts of the world, we magnify Thy glorious name."

Health Rules Draw Up

To Lessen Danger Of Transporting Disease By Air

A set of rules designed to minimize the danger of disease propagation by aircraft moving from one country to another has been drawn up by the International Sanitary Convention for Air Navigation.

Great Britain is one of the 23 countries which have agreed to the rules, although British Empire lines are considered practically immune because of the repeated changes from one type of airplane to another en route.

The rules relate chiefly to the provision at Customs airframes of means for inspection, and, if necessary, for suggestion.

In ten years the United States has imported six million dollars worth of rubber—less than one-third of a pound.

DR. WERNET'S POWDER HOLDS FAST

Had The Information

Lieut. Alfred Hernandez of the Chilean police was the most astonished man in London when he was there to study British police methods. He had long sought a rare book on occultism. In vain he looked for it in the United States and on the European continent. In desperation he asked a London "Bobby" in Regent street. Hernandez nearly collapsed. The "Bobby" told him the proper title, the price and the name of the publisher.
